Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA, March 21.—Direct Canadian financial assistance to Britain in the coming year running as high as one billion dollars may be provided by this country in 1941, it is understood, and the new financial factor in Canadian war plans is reported to be foremost in government conferences that are constantly reshaping fiscal policy in advance of the new budget.

A Canadian financial aid to Britain is understood to be far outstripping the original scope of the policy which Ottawa registered $180,000,000 of British-owned securities in the first year of the war. The total provided to 1941 reaches $1,000,000,000 which high officials now regard as likely, this form of financial assistance by Canada will far outstrip proportionately the United States. Least-Lend aid. A billion dollars from Canada corresponds to about $100 million from the United States, in terms of population and national income.

Up to January 31 this year, Canada has repatriated $234,000,000 of British-owned securities. At that time, the treasury had accumulated $177,000,000 more for the Canadian government. The method of helping Britain directly is that the Canadian government has been authorized to accumulate sterling reserves in the repatriation account. But there is no limitation on Canadian securities it may purchase. But there is no limitation on the sterling funds it may purchase in the United States and there is no limitation on British purchases in Canada.

Big Task Performed
By Life Insurance

Life insurance performs a great task in the world today, providing for security against the great contingency that no man can foresee—death, and security against diminishing earning power in old age, insurance men were told Friday by Frank Pike, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Edmonton main branch, at the educational congress of the Northern Alberta Life Underwriters in the Macdonald hotel.

Mr. Pike, who spoke on "Life Insurance as a Safe Investment," said that insurance companies and banks were entering the savings of the people. The chief executives, he said, are "Canada's first citizens adding. They will hold insurance the trust imposed upon them."

Following welcome of the 45 delegates to the gathering by Thomas G. Morris, C.I.U. president of the Edmonton Life Underwriters' Association, an address was given by R. M. Moore, C.I.U. of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, on "Preserving Liquidity."

Serb Cabinet Ministers Refuse To Remain
In Government Despite Order By
Regent Prince Paul To Do So

By B. T. RICHARDSON

BEGRAD, Yugoslavia, March 21.—(AP)—A swelling tide of internal discontent, led by three anti-German cabinet ministers and other high officials, forced tonight probable postponement of the Yugoslav government's plans to align itself with the Axis Sunday at Vienna.

The three ministers—Serb leaders in this nation of mixed peoples—who resigned in protest against a crown council decision to yield to Germany, refused to remain in the cabinet even though Regent Prince Paul ordered them to do so.

The dissenters flatly declared they would have nothing more to do with the government. Their stand, which the country learned via the grapevine method, added to the growing crisis over the government's acceptance of the Reich's demands that Yugoslavia align herself with Slovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, junior members of the Axis.

Fourth Minister Plans To Resign
A fourth cabinet minister who voted against acquiescence to Germany was said to be planning to resign, and the minister to Russia, Gavrilovic, was said to have sent his resignation to Prince Paul.

One of the dissenters, Dr. Branko Cvetkovic, minister of agriculture and leader of the Serb peasant party, called a meeting of his party chiefs to discuss the crisis.

Prince Paul summoned Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksandar Cincar-Marcovic to the White House today.

35 MILLIONS FOR AGRICULTURE BONUS ASKED

Supplementary Estimate Is Introduced Into House Of Commons

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP)—A supplementary estimate to provide $35,000,000 for payments on reductions in wheat acreage under the government's 1941-42 wheat policy, and for administration and temporary appointments required under the policy, was introduced in the House of Commons Thursday night.

In announcing plans for keeping 1941-42 wheat deliveries to not more than 20,000,000 bushels, Agriculture Minister Gardiner stated in the house on March 12 that certain bonuses would be paid for summer-fallowing acreage ordinarily devoted to wheat or turning it to production for other grains.

GOVERNMENT PLAN
The government will pay the farmer 84 per cent for reduced wheat acreage which is in summer fallow July 1. Mr. Gardiner announced. If the land were sown to clover, grain, or other crops, the bonus would be $2 an acre.

Mr. Gardiner stated at that time an estimate of the amount of money which could be earned was possible. If 1,000,000 acres were moved from wheat to summer-fallowing, the amount distributed would be $35,000,000.

If 6,000,000 acres were utilized as summer-fallow, and 4,000,000 acres for coarse grains and grass, the distribution would be $25,000,000 for summer-fallow and $10,000,000 for coarse grains or grass or both.

On the $32,000,000 supplementary estimate will be considered was definite, but the plan was not decided Thursday night and will be decided before it will start today.

NOT SEPARATE BILL

Immediately after Finance Minister Hiley had presented the wheat supplementary, several members wanted to know if the war was not a separate bill or resolution before the house, either to support the bonus plan.

Opposition leader Hanson said the question would not be decided with a mere item in the estimates but would require some special legislation in the way of a measure. He indicated that the government could not hope for complete support if it tried to proceed without it.

PROUD TO CO-OPERATE
Nevertheless, Mr. Pike stated that as Canada can no more escape the consequences of the war, his firm is proud to co-operate in the full extent in the efforts of the Canadian government to plant out and for all the depressed areas of the world.

Asked what his company is doing for its enlisted employees, Mr. Pike stated that all regular employees have been enlisted, and that those with dependents, an allowance is being made by the company in addition to their active service pay.

Mr. Pike stated that some three hundred employees are active in the war effort, and are active in the various home front units and other forms of War Work.

Following conferences and consultations, Mr. Pike will present the Regins for similar conferences in that city.

TRANS-CANADA AIR SERVICE IS EXPANDING

Earnings Reduce Mail Mileage Rate To 40 Cents Minister Says

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP)—Operations of Trans-Canada Air Lines are expanding so rapidly it would be unfair to the post office department to apply the automatic method of fixing air mail rates, said Munitions Minister Hiley in the House of Commons Thursday night as a bill to amend the Trans-Canada Air Lines Act was discussed.

The Act provides that starting this year the air mail rate for each year should be based on the profit for the previous year. The amendment would allow the automatic method and also provide that when it becomes effective the new rate should be fixed on Jan. 1 to allow time for changing the rates for the previous year.

Mr. Hiley said the air mail rate for 1941-42 would be 40 cents per mile, reduction from the 60-cent rate now in force. In 1940 the rate was 50 cents. In 1939 it was 50 cents. In 1938 it was 50 cents. NAVAL CRUISE WARNING SIGN FOR JAPANESE

By J. C. STARR

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(CP)—United States Navy movements in Australian and New Zealand waters appeared today to be designed as a caution signal to Japan in connection with the fourth-coming Axis talks in Berlin.

Official emphasis was placed on the "good will" character of the fleet visit to Sydney and Auckland, but the unusual presence of 13 American warships in the South Pacific evoked significantly with the journey of Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese foreign minister, to Germany.

The trip by way of Moscow, had been accompanied by Axis press reports that it was part of a "forced answer" to the passage of the trans-Pacific and President Roosevelt's declaration of a "no war" for Great Britain and other nations "shouting" the Axis.

Informed diplomatic observers here noted, however, that Japanese failure over the region to be achieved by Matsuoka's trip was far less extravagant than that emanating from Berlin and Rome.

From this, the conclusion was drawn in some quarters that Japan was losing to gain from the meeting then in Germany and Italy.

By such reasoning, it was concluded that Germany hopes to get commitments from Matsuoka to "divert" the Pacific that would force the United States to aid in Berlin. It was also noted that Japan is unable to see how Germany can provide aid in the event of a clash in the Far East.

Whatever Axis-American plans might be for the future, the Japanese government has declared that Japan is in a war in the Pacific would not affect aid to Britain.

Unlike Hitler, who continues to make it known that Germany's victory is certain, some officials in Japan would hesitate now to make a move that might alienate the United States and Britain.

Today's War Moves

The move into the Balkans felt able to grant Germany in fact this time. However, the British and French, who are not allowed to be seen to support Germany, are only partly and ambivalent.

If it is true that German fighting divisions will be unable to make use of Yugoslav highways, an important advantage is given to the British and French, which might conceivably allow them to hold back any German attack on eastern Greece. This is the major issue in the Balkans, and it is the only one that is not a matter of opinion.

If the further delay that it is necessary to attack eastern Greece is to be helped, the British and French are in a better position to be able to do so. One of the main reasons for the delay is the fact that the British and French are not allowed to be seen to support Germany, and the only way to do so is by using only partly and ambivalent.

ENTRANCE CLOSED
If Yugoslavians had to be refused to allow to enter Greece, the British and French are in a better position to be able to do so. One of the main reasons for the delay is the fact that the British and French are not allowed to be seen to support Germany, and the only way to do so is by using only partly and ambivalent.

These highways are easily protected. They do not run along a wide front and are supported by flank and frontal fire. The British and French are in a better position to be able to do so. One of the main reasons for the delay is the fact that the British and French are not allowed to be seen to support Germany, and the only way to do so is by using only partly and ambivalent.

THE worst rain of fire and death from the skies London has known since the bombing of the city by the Luftwaffe, was synchronized with the passage of the House of Commons in Washington of the $7,000,000 bill to finance aid to the United States and for Britain.

That might be coincidence but it is not. It was in the light of the fact that the British and French are in a better position to be able to do so. One of the main reasons for the delay is the fact that the British and French are not allowed to be seen to support Germany, and the only way to do so is by using only partly and ambivalent.

OTTAWA, March 21.—There are no aces in this war, so the air force men tell you, and they go on to explain that air fighting is team work. Now, rather than being a lone hero, McNab will have a special place in the annals of the air force.

McNab, a fighter pilot of the Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed in the crash of the first air battle in British Columbia, when he was shot down by a German plane.

RCAF went on "operational" duty. McNab was killed in the crash of the first air battle in British Columbia, when he was shot down by a German plane.

TRANSFER OF MEN FOR JOBS IS SUGGESTED

By J. C. STARR

OTTAWA, March 21.—(CP)—Transfer of 200 men from Calgary to a point where they could find employment last fall may be the beginning of a shift of population which will gain in strength, it was indicated here Monday night.

In the past, the federal government has been reluctant to move men in production of munitions and other war supplies there may soon be a shortage of labor, it is acknowledged in the military in the military.

Labour Minister MacKay said yesterday was necessary to be given to the possibility of labor shortages, but the actual move had not yet been made. He said there had been some movement of men from labor schools but it was not yet on a wide scale.

Urban relief figures up to Nov. 30, 1940, available in the report of the national relief registration, showed that fully 100,000 men were registered in the country in the same month in 1939.

In Ontario the drop during the year was 10,000 in 1939 and 12,000 in 1940. In Saskatchewan, the total was 14,000 in 1939 and 12,000 in 1940. Manitoba's figure dropped from 11,500 to 1,500 while Alberta dropped to 1,500 from 5,000.

Prince Edward Island received a drop in the number of men registered, but the actual move had not yet been made. He said there had been some movement of men from labor schools but it was not yet on a wide scale.

The registration statistics failed to take into account the 45,000 men who were registered in the country in the same month in 1939.

B.C. Exporters Of Eggs To Get 3-Cent Subsidy

By J. C. STARR

VANCOUVER, March 21.—(CP)—Provided it is turned over to the producers, the provincial government is ready to pay exporters of eggs a subsidy of three cents a dozen, Hon. Dr. K. Macdonald, B.C. Minister of Agriculture, announced at a meeting of the B.C. Poultry Producers' Association Thursday.

Dr. Macdonald declared he would give the principle of subsidizing any industry as "economically sound, but as war conditions have prevented a natural flow of trade, particularly export trade, it seems necessary to help the producer."

He said the province had been holding back on the subsidy offer in the hope the Dominion would share the cost on a 50-50 basis.

England's 1940 home-grown level for white sugar per head of the population is equal to 23 pounds, or 11.5 cents per head of the population.

Interpreting War News

By KIRK L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

THE worst rain of fire and death from the skies London has known since the bombing of the city by the Luftwaffe, was synchronized with the passage of the House of Commons in Washington of the $7,000,000 bill to finance aid to the United States and for Britain.

Looking them Over

by JACK KELLY

SOMETIME when the city council gets a few minutes to consider things in general and not just some money to work with, it should give a statue to the girls of this city, for they have probably done as much to keep it prominent nationally and internationally as all the men put together.

For years the city has been known from Halifax to Vancouver as the town with more attractive looking girls than any other place. The boys who get around here just see more pretty girls in a block on Jasper than in the whole of any other city.

But Edmonton girls don't just look pretty. They have made a record in sport that is amazing. The Gracie made Edmonton world famous and girls athletes in other lines of sport have also been making headlines.

New Edmonton is again receiving nation-wide notice as a result of the shooting being done by the Ladies' section of the Greater Edmonton Rifle Association. Yesterday it was announced that Mrs. James Clement, 11146 66 st., had won the Dominion Marksmen Expert bullet, highest honors attainable in small bore sporting rifle competition in Canada.

There are approximately 30,000 men and women shooting in the Dominion Marksmen organization in Canada and the 200 of that number have been able to win the Expert bullet which requires almost perfect scores on 60 targets, 20 points, 20 hitting and 20 offhand. Twelve women have won this award and two of them are members of the Greater Edmonton Association. Mrs. Lloyd Williams was the first Edmonton woman to get a shield, competing the first in March, 1940.

Mrs. Clement's feat is remarkable even to the fact that it was just two years ago that she joined the Greater Edmonton Rifle Association and started serious shooting under the guidance of the club's coaches.

Incidentally the Edmonton Association is the largest small bore rifle club in Canada today and was the first to enter a team of ladies in the Dominion-wide competition that previously was restricted solely to men. The entry brought as much publicity that a special Dominion competition had been organized for women. The Greater Edmonton Rifle Association now has 50 lady members who enjoy their own private night on the club range with no men in sight to bother them with needless advice.

Junior Cagers Start Again

THE quality of play has become so interesting in city junior men's basketball series, it would be to cutting off afternoon tea circles.

The Sparks of the Y.M.C.A. and Commercial Roadsters have been engaged in a playoff series for the northern Alberta championship for so long now that it is not soon finished all the players will be over the junior age limit.

Sparks were the first to be found with an average player after the series had started and this resulted in an extra game. The Commercial Roadsters thought they had the title won with their victory over the Sparks on Wednesday night, but now it develops that a Commercial is over the age limit and two more games will be needed to settle the title.

Clare Hollingsworth, A.B.A. official in charge of the playoffs here, ruled last night that the game the Commercial was won from the Sparks on Wednesday night would stand as a victory for the Sparks in view of all the Sparks being the current age of them but one Commercial being a few months too old. The second of the best of three title series will be played on Tuesday night at McDougall gym. If a third game is needed, it will be played either on a Sunday night or the first of one of the extending game time of a day in the city.

"Of course we can! This is Emu wine—the rich, full bodied wine that's made from the finest grapes grown on the uplands of sunny, southern Australia. A foreign wine as good as this would cost more than we could afford, but who wants a foreign wine when Emu is available? Saskatoon Quakers, E.A.C. Promise Thrilling Series

SATURDAY night at the Arena here the Edmonton Athletic Club will launch its fourth consecutive campaign in search of western Canada junior honors when it tangles with the Saskatchewan champions, Saskatoon Quakers, in a best of five western semi-final series, all of which will be played on Edmonton ice.

Saskatoon Quakers come with an impressive record. They took the Saskatchewan title with four straight victories in best of three series against Regina Generals and Prince Albert. In these four games the Quakers scored 33 goals against 11 scored on them.

In exhibition games here early in the season, the Quakers have defeated both the Maple Leafs and Edmonton Athletic Club, which makes the E.A.C. underdogs in the betting on the coming inter-club series, although there are hundreds of Edmonton fans who feel that the Quakers have improved so much since their last game here a 3-0-0 chance of beating the Quakers.

The Saskatoon squad is composed of big rugged lads that will have an edge in weight over the E.A.C. average of 150 lbs. per man. The Quakers were born in Saskatoon and within a 100-mile radius of that city. Keith Allen, defenseman, is the only member of the team who did not play all his hockey in Saskatoon.

Greeks Unleash New Drive On Duce

Centring their blows on Thessalonika, which for months has formed a sharp point in the battle front (spoken later), Greek forces have opened a sweeping attack in the difficult mountainous country. The ground contingents were supported by air attacks, made primarily by the R.A.F. on Duxes, west of Thessalonika, and in the vicinity of Glava in the north.

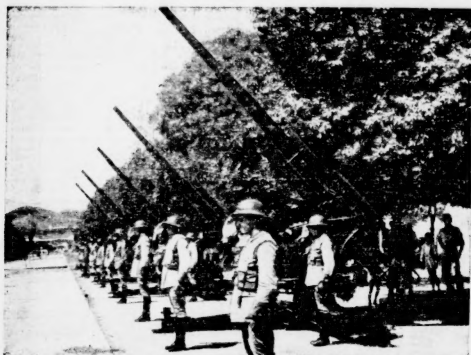

See Possibility Hitler Will Drive At Straits In Effort To Seize Iraq Oilfields

Experts believe the German spring offensive will have three prongs. One, an all-out submarine warfare against British shipping. The second, a drive through Spain against Gibraltar. The third, a move through Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey against the Moud oil wells of Iraq to supply the much-needed war machine. In this picture we see British troops guarding oil lines which pipe oil from the Moud wells.

At right is a view of the Bosphorus, the narrowest water barrier between Europe and the Near East, as it appears at its narrowest point. With the Sea of Marmara and the Dardanelles, it connects the Black Sea, where Germany now has submarine bases, with the Aegean Sea, where Greek and British fleet units are believed hovering. Should Turkey ally Britain she could tighten traffic control on the Bosphorus, thus prevent German submarines from travelling unscathed to the Mediterranean.

Guns From "Good Neighbor" Guard Brazilian Skies

"Good Neighbor" guns to guard Brazilian air are three anti-aircraft rifles of Brazil's first regiment of anti-aircraft artillery, which were sent up for inspection of Deodoro Major Regard Alves Maia, who headed Brazil's anti-aircraft defense instruction centre, is commanding officer of the new regiment. In addition to the guns, Brazil's anti-aircraft program calls for a variety of aircraft fleet of planes and pilots to fly them. Brazil will soon receive her latest "most delivery" of six bomber planes built for her by the United States.

Back From Battle Of Britain

This bombproof mobile tea kitchen, fresh from the battle of Britain, is supported by representatives of the British War Relief Society as it is unloaded at a Brooklyn pier. Nicknamed the "Iron Duke" by British soldiers, the kitchen was ordered for six months in the Channel and in London. It is now to start on a tour of duty in the United States under the auspices of the War Relief Society, which has already purchased 300 similar units. Mrs. Alfred T. White (left) and Miss Lenora Cornett, English school, who drive a similar unit in England, inspect the area in the kitchen.

Australian Contingents Arrive To Defend Singapore

This first picture from Singapore shows British soldiers in their intention of making any Japanese expedition in program southwest toward the Netherlands East Indies, Japan, and when clearing the mainline of Australian soldiers to their rearward line through Malayan base. The contingent arrived equipped with bringing its own transport staff. Some of the Australian troops are shown below as they disembarked.

Toy Trade Helping Empire War Effort

Canadian and British toy manufacturers, who are not strictly war-related, are working into war-related industries, dominated by the Axis powers. These toys and games are among the important military items which faithfully penetrate the war effort in various ways, such as at Toronto for fun. They come from the United Kingdom in the empire. Management of the British Toy Industry has been designated by government officials, and the increasing export of toys to the United States and other countries is being encouraged for support of the war.

Aussies Aid Singapore Defence

Australian soldiers, carrying full pack, disembark at Singapore to aid all-out defense of the area. British submarines in anticipation of attack at almost any time, have notified residents of nearby regions to "get ready now" to leave.

WAIT FOR ME

By KATHERINE MACY

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

It was the snow that saved them. It had been falling on the Blue Ridge time after time this winter, falling thick on both sides of the thick, heavy, feathered which cushioned the planes drop in the flat landscape on which Jan and Peter landed.

Just before they hit the ground, Jan had managed to open the door on her side, she either jumped or fell into the snow-fallen snow. Miraculously, she did not hit her head on the side of the plane.

Her nose, her mouth and eyes were full of the cold, wet stuff. Her hat had fallen off and she could not see it in the darkness. When she struggled to her feet, dizzy and shocked, she could see only the skeletal-like outline of the plane higher than the other, its nose pushed into the snow.

SHAKES HEAD

The wind was whipping more now on her unprotected hair. She wiped it from her face and shook her head violently. It was bitterly cold, and deathly still. Peter must have cut off the motor as they landed.

Peter! Now she knew why the plane was so frightening. She was alone in the snow, she worked her way around the plane to the pilot's seat, and was on the left side, and the door was half-buried in snow, pushed against it so that she could not find the knob.

Energy was welling back in her. She drew a long breath which was icy in her throat. Even if there had been something to dig with, she could not have found it now. All she had were the clumsy things—her two gloved hands.

NO MOVEMENT

There was no movement inside the plane. If Peter had been conscious he would have been struggling to get out. But she could not see him, nor hear him. Her gloves were terrible and ones which she had snatched up in her hurry to leave Mother Mallory's. With a silent prayer that they would hold out, she began to dig.

Snow flew from her hands, but it seems to Jan as if fresh flakes took their place as soon as she had cleared a space. Yet, little by little, the door was appearing before her.

She could feel its edges as she worked down, her breath coming in gasps, leaving ribs. She was warmer now, too warm. But she didn't dare leave her coat.

When she got as far down as the handle, she gave a great try, hoping the opening door would close over the rest of the snow.

It did not. She tried to catch a glimpse of Peter. But the darkness was too intense.

How long she worked, she never knew. But her gloves were torn from her hands, stiff with ice, and her hands were so cold that she could scarcely grip the handle when the door finally came open.

PETER'S FACE

She stepped inside and felt Peter. His face felt hot. Then on downward, to his heart it was beating, he was warm.

Jan felt back on her heels and covered her face with her hands for a moment of such thankfulness that it was almost a pain.

Then she set to work again.

Her greatest problem was to raise Peter, to find if and where he had been hurt. If he were injured, it would do no good to get him out of the plane; for there was no place to put him.

Could she do it, anyway? There was slight hope. If there was, it was in the fact that she was so busy and so excited, that she was almost unconscious and trembling. She was almost not carrying him, even if there were any shelter.

Seizing the first idea which came into her mind, she caught up a handful of snow and rubbed it gently on his face, calling him, "Peter, Peter, are you all right?"

He seemed to be slumped over the controls and she had to lean forward to try to see him. She gripped his shoulders and felt a movement. The thrill of that waking sense, a wave of excitement through her whole body. She shook him hard, calling in excitement, "Wake up, Peter!"

His voice was weak, but she heard it. "What's going on here?" Jan looked in hysterical relief. "Just a little accident, darling. Are you hurt?"

He sat up straight, then groaned. "I think something's wrong with one of my legs. It's ended abruptly, then, as she reached for him, 'Wait a minute. I'll see if I can move.' He stirred and said, 'I can feel it. It's my right ankle. It must be sprained or broken.'"

The mountain, itself really a mountain, it was one of those flat-topped hills that roll gently across the landscape.

When dawn came they could see that much because it had stopped snowing. The day was going to be clear, sunny, and cold.

The two cliffs from the top space at the edge of the plane where she had been sitting. She had wanted to shut the door so that Peter would be warmer, but he would not let her. "You can stand up all right," he told her, "and there's no place for you to sit or to lean unless you can get inside."

HIGH SEAT And she could not climb into the other one, because it had been left too high above the ground; nor could she ask Peter to move, for fear of injuring his leg further.

She had huddled, then, for perhaps two hours on the floor before him, his arm holding her to the plane until it had become too stiff and cold. They had talked to keep their spirits up, talked about the first things that came into their heads.

Oddly enough, it had been mostly about Hollywood. They had remembered all times Peter had come there, when Pop was away, they gave their roles, the scripts they got into.

With the first light of dawn, Jan knew where they were. She walked a little way from the plane and two

"Peter," she said, coming back to him and hearing down on his face, she said, "You know what we can do now?"

"Of course it is. Didn't you say you could find Hollywood from the air, no matter what happened?"

Peter didn't want her to leave alone. But there was no choice. She didn't want to leave him, but he must have his chance.

Now that she could see Hollywood in that proud white setting, clear and serene in her accustomed eyes, she knew there was hope for them.

"If I can just jump some feeling into my feet."

They crossed the ice. She readily refused Peter's suggestion of his car. She did take his watch, after he had secured her blonde head. When she turned to wave to him, she saw, glancing on the gold coins which fluttered from it around her face.

NEES ROAD

Perhaps half a mile below she could see a road, more-covered but discernible. She knew this mountain, she knew the road. If she could only wade, or slide, or walk to it.

An hour later she was knocking on the door of the first house at the foot of the mountain, knocking hard enough to wake the household.

Jan said to the astonished man who appeared in the doorway, "If you have a telephone, if you please call Hollywood. I don't tell them that Mr. Peter Van Vliet has crashed his plane on top of the mountain. I don't think."

... can talk.

Will It Be Formal Or Informal?

The most perfect day of your life. That's what your wedding day can be, with every detail of dress, elegantly planned ahead.

Of course the first thing to decide is whether the wedding shall be formal or informal.

Perhaps you've dreamed of being the traditional formal bride. You would love to walk up the budget shimmering satin, carrying a bouquet or prayerbook with a long long veil floating classily behind you. Then do, but all else must wait.

If the ceremony's in the afternoon, he will be handsome and correct in cutaway and striped trousers. If in the evening, he will wear white tie and tails.

But perhaps you prefer to eschew all affect to the informal, and wear a smart suit or afternoon dress with hat, corsage and gloves. Then your delicious groom wears a business suit.

How to divide wedding costs? What is the etiquette of the ceremony? The reception? Our 32-page booklet tells whole family pays for what he pays for and budget your wedding.

Send for yours free on the cover of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding" to Home Service, The Edmonton Bulletin, 40 Front St. W., Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of booklet.
